BUTS $10,000 FROM SUE.

One Against the Westerner and His Companions Seems Slight, but They're Held for Having Gambling Implements Taken to the Market and Were Worked.

William B. Masterson, better known as "Big Boy" Masterson, who was arrested on Friday afternoon on the charge of having a brace of pistols in his possession, was held before Magistrate Charles J. Gargan, who is a justice of the peace, on Monday morning. The bail of Masterson and his companions was set at $10,000 each. When the case was called on, Magistrate Gargan said:

I'LL NOT RESIGN—PARTRIDGE

AND THE FORCE IS IMPROVING
WITNESS THE MAJOR'S NICE.

The Mayor and I Get Along Better Together Every Time We Meet. He Adds Seven New Captains This Week and Perhaps a Shakedown of Old Ones.

Police Commissioner Partridge was, contrary to his usual custom, was at the dock for three hours yesterday afternoon repeated with emphasis that he did not intend to resign and declared that he and Mayor Low got along together better every time they saw each other.

"I can give you my word that I have not resigned and have no present intention of doing so," he said. "What I may come to do a year from now no one knows, of course, nor do I know it myself now. The Mayor has never intimated that he desired me to resign and I do not think he will do it hereafter. The more he and I see of each other, the better we work together."

In an interview yesterday morning, the Commissioner said that he had discussed the Police Department thoroughly with Mayor Low during his visit to the latter's country home at Rye last Friday night. He repeated the belief he has expressed on several previous occasions, that the department was doing better, but steadily improving. The criticisms made of the department, he said, were often caused by chance happenings observed by persons within their own narrow sphere and having no true bearing on the general condition of the force.

"Last night," the Commissioner said, "Mayor Low's niece congratulated me because she thought the force improved. She said that the crossing at Forty-second street and Fifth avenue, where she often passes, never had been so well policed. And here [the Commissioner put his hand on a letter lying on his desk] here a man writes to tell me that the state of affairs at the very same crossing had never been so bad as it is now. What am I to think? And it is pretty much the same with the criticism of the department that comes to my ears."

Most of the Commissioner's afternoon was spent in conferences behind locked doors with Deputy Commissioner Thompson, Second Deputy Commissioner Egan and Senior Inspector Corbridge. The large map showing the boundaries of the precincts and inspection districts, which hangs in the Commissioner's private office, was in constant use during the conference and several times the various department members were called for. Before the conference closed Private Secretary Corbridge wrote out and mailed letters to seven sergeants who had been on the new eligible list, summoning them to appear before the Commissioner.

Commissioner Partridge said when all was over that he had been considering not only the placing of the captains that are to be appointed, but also the transfer of a number of the old captains. Beyond that he refused to speak.

The Commissioner said about two months ago that he would make as few transfers of captains as possible until he was ready to fill the existing vacancies. When that time came, he said, a rearrangement of command was possible and he was ready to make it.

The appointments will probably be made on Tuesday. The seven men to be made captains are: Sergeant James Donovan, Michael Smith, Christian Reimes, James P. Nally, Patrick Berne, Thomas F. Maude and Bernard J. Hayes. The first five are veterans and pretty well up in years. They will undoubtedly be given good berths. Three of the new captains come from the 1st, 2nd and 5th of the existing vacancies are in that borough.

Rumor would have it yesterday that some of the inspectors might also be affected, and Inspector Cross was especially pointed out as being likely to have a vacancy. When a question regarding this was first brought up at the Commissioner's conference, he said he was not ready to say whether it was possible or not, and replied:

"Why, you ought to know by this time that I do not deal in rumors."

"NOTHING IN LIFE" CHOSE DEATH.

Hartmann Shot Himself in a Park After a Hard Luck Talk With a Neighbor.

A man who the police say is John Hartmann, 33 years old, a cook and gambler, died early yesterday morning by shooting himself through the head in Tompkins Square Park. He sat on one of the benches a few minutes before he was found by a man who was sitting beside him.

"There's nothing in life now, I am going to shoot myself," he said.

Then he put his hand into his hip pocket and drew a revolver. The man to whom he spoke ran and informed a policeman. He had taken only a few steps when he heard a shot. The man had fired a bullet into his brain and was dead when the policeman reached his side.

It was said that the suicide was a native of Wurtemberg, Germany, and that a relative had died a short time ago leaving him a legacy of $1,000. He had exhausted this money and had not been able to secure employment lately.

Overseasmen Hookkeeper a Suicide.

George L. Engel, aged 35, who was the head hookkeeper in a gold point restaurant in Manhattan, was shot yesterday by a man who committed suicide yesterday.

He was in the home of his parents, 36 Seward street, Williamsburg, by shooting himself in the head. He had been in poor health for a long time, through overwork and through the loss of his job. He had exhausted this money and had not been able to secure employment lately.

Stream of Boiling Tallow Poured Over Him.

Jacob Jacobson, 38 years old, of 81 Willow avenue, Hahoen, is dying in St. Mary's Hospital, that city, of burns received while at work in Lederer's fat-rendering plant on Henderson street, Jersey City. Jacobson was standing beneath a big cauldron of boiling tallow when he accidentally turned on the faucet. The stream of hot fat bore him to the ground and kept pouring over him for several minutes before he was rescued by his fellow workmen.
